WAR OFFICE WARNS GERMANS INTENDING TO USE POISON GAS

Flimsy and Mendacious Claims That Great Britain Shipped Such Material to Poland Indicate Own Plans to Employ Weapon First Faced by Canadians at Ypres

LONDON, Oct. 20 (P).—The War Office, in a gravely worded communique, tonight warned that recent German claims that Great Britain shipped poison gas to Poland "clearly indicated an intention to use poison gas on the Western Front."

Characterizing Nazi repetition of these claims as "flimsy and mendacious," the communique, headed "The Poison Gas Lie," recalled that during the first Great War Reich charges accusing the Allies of using poison gas were followed up by its use under orders of the German High Command.

Reports that the town of Stretford, Lancashire, had been flooded with an apparently German-printed pamphlet entitled "Great Britain sent poison gas to Poland," indicated why the War Office saw fit to make a lengthy and clear statement of Great Britain's view of the German charges.

FABRICATED DETAIL
The War Office statement itself spoke only of such pamphlets having been circulated in neutral countries and as containing "a wealth of fabricated detail."

The persons receiving the pamphlet at Stretford had no connections with Germany. The envelopes bore Danish stamps and civic officials said they believed the names had been selected at random from the town's telephone book.

The War Office communique, after detailing the German claims, which included assertions that four German sappers died and ten were injured from the effects of mustard gas in an explosion at Jasin, in Galicia, Poland, went on to say:

"This German fabrication continued to be maliciously disseminated by wireless and pamphlet... the War Office, with full knowledge of the facts, once more repeats that no gas mines were shipped from Great Britain to Gdynia at any time."

ORDER AFFECTS ENEMY ALIENS

Possession of Firearms, Ammunition or Any Explosive Forbidden

OTTAWA, Oct. 20 (P).—Canada has forbidden enemy aliens to possess firearms, ammunition, dynamite, gunpowder or any other explosive, the regulations under the War Measures Act being published in The Canada Gazette.

Preface to the order-in-council setting forth the regulations says the Minister of Justice represented that the general provisions of the Criminal Code respecting aliens and firearms were inadequate at present.

Enemy aliens possessing the forbidden articles are required to deliver them to a peace officer within ten days of publication of the regulations. (Official publication will be tomorrow in The Gazette).

POWER OF SEARCH
Power is given police to search enemy aliens and premises occupied by them on reasonable suspicion that the regulations are being broken. Penalty up to $500 or three months in prison, is provided for breach of the rules.

The regulations also make it an offence for any person to give, sell, lease or transfer any of the forbidden articles to an enemy alien. Maximum penalties here are $100 or one month.

Burden of proof that a person accused is not an enemy alien is to rest on accused.

RESTRICTION REMOVED

LONDON, Oct. 20 (P).—The British Government decided today to remove the rationing restriction under which gas and electricity had been cut to 75 per cent of prewar figures. It was found the restriction—designed to curtail use of coal—was unnecessary, since people had been using so much less gas and electricity because of the blackout.

KILLED UNDER SLIDE

INVERMERE, B.C., Oct. 20 (P).—Francis Green, of nearby Atholmer, B.C., an employee of the General Construction Company, was killed today when caught under a forty-foot slide while on a road construction job here.

Co-ordination of Industries to Be Undertaken Here

J. E. Goldring and J. A. Heritage Appointed by Manufacturers and Commercial Group to Make Comprehensive Survey With View to Supplying Dominion and Empire Needs

AN important step towards the co-ordination of all industrial plants in Victoria, whether large or small, to supply the war needs of the Dominion and Great Britain, and at the same time lay the foundations of industries that will aid in the expansion of the city in peacetime, was taken yesterday by a joint committee of the Victoria branch of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The committee appointed J. E. Goldring and J. A. Heritage as co-ordinators under a scheme whereby, it is proposed that every industry on Vancouver Island that is interested in making its contribution to the war requirements of Canada and Britain should register its intention to do so at the same time.

ORGANIZATION NEEDED
The setting up of the committee and the appointment of the co-ordinators developed from conversations between R. W. Mathew, M.P., chairman of the British Columbia division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association, and since Mr. Mathew's return from the second war session of the House of Commons.

Mr. Mathew indicated to the committee that a very real need existed for the co-ordination of all forms of industry in the Dominion and the Empire during the war, and stated at that time that any survey so far made with a view to wartime co-ordination, however well intentioned, had been insufficiently comprehensive to permit of the Government and the industry of the various plants.

SAN FRANCISCO FAIR BANKRUPT

Proceedings Filed in Federal Court—Exposition Is to Close October 29

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 20 (P).—The San Francisco World Fair, under a special section of the Bankruptcy Law in Federal Court today, declared its assets to be insufficient to pay its debts.

A petition was filed in Federal Court today, charging that the fair had failed to pay its debts, and that the assets were insufficient to pay the same.

The fair board of managers, headed by Federal Judge Harold Louderback, is reorganizing the fair, which the exposition may continue to operate under its present control until the closing date.

PAVILIONS TO BE MET
Randall Larson, attorney who filed the proceeding, said that pavilions and exhibits had not been met.

Biggest creditors are banks, the Standard Oil Company of California and the Pacific Gas & Electric Company. The fair's annual budget was $1,000,000 and the Standard Oil Company $500,000 and nearly $200,000 to each of six banks.

Meanwhile a group of members struggling to raise funds for a fair reopening next year said the outlook is promising.

Turkish Minister Back From Moscow In Hopeful Frame

ANKARA, Oct. 20 (CP-Ha).—Sukru Saracolu, Turkish Foreign Minister, back from his interrupted talks with Soviet leaders, hinted tonight on arriving here that negotiations with Russia have not definitely ended. He said he had taken with him from Moscow "the best of impressions, pending further talks."

TRAINING IS COMPULSORY

Government of Australia Adopts Plan to Maintain Military Strength

MELBOURNE, Oct. 20 (P).—A Government plan for compulsory military training was announced today by Prime Minister Robert Menzies. It will affect men who will be twenty-one July 1, 1940.

The training will begin in January, and the scheme, which applies to single men only, will be applicable to those who are exempted except in the case of men who are engaged in certain professions.

Mr. Menzies said compulsory military training was necessary to replace withdrawals to the reserve forces and to maintain Australia's military strength at a minimum of 75,000.

He said that as a result of compulsory training, it had been decided to release from the militia to the reserve forces a number of men to carry on their homes and maintain their family budget during their three months in camp.

INCREASED PAY
An act of all men being sent from two million to three million men to three million men, Mr. Menzies said, would be a great help to the war effort.

During the first Great War Australia had sent 400,000 men overseas, and now, Mr. Menzies said, the country's population of 3,317,811 were sent overseas, fully equipped by the Australian Government, whose total war expenditure was $1,800,000,000.

DESPITE ALL HAZARDS
Said Mr. Menzies, "despite all hazards, the Government will do its utmost to ensure that the country is fully equipped for the war."

War News In Brief

Inactivity Forced by Rain and Clouds on Airmen at the Front

Reconnaissance Flights Over Germany Carried Out From England—Officers and Men Remain Cheerful, Ready for Attack or Defence

WITH THE ROYAL AIR FORCE IN FRANCE, Oct. 20 (CP-Reuters).—(Passed by Field Censor).—The weather, rainy and overclouded for some days, shows little sign of improving. Inactivity in the air is reported general among most of the Allied units on the Western Front. Even exercises behind the Maginot Line are infrequent. Reconnaissance flights over Germany this week have been carried out from England.

But the nerves of the British airmen here show no signs of cracking under the strain of the war's faltering age and approach of winter with its days, and possibly weeks, when flying may be impossible whatever the momentum of hostilities.

AMAZINGLY CHEERFUL
Mud may be piling up in the villages where they are billeted, and their secret airdromes may be becoming sordid, but the officers and men are still amazingly cheerful, and their job—ever to be ready to take off in attack or defence—is being faithfully carried out. A false alarm last week proved this.

They are still talking about the visit of the Air Minister, Sir Kingsley Wood's direct approach and speech pleased the airmen. He quizzed through mud, climbed steps and ducked into dugouts and small rooms to meet his men, always a little ahead of the senior officers with him.

Sir Kingsley found much to amuse as well as interest him. A trailer with these destinations chalked up: "Siegfried Line, Five France, Bligny, Three France, made him chuckle.

CAMERAS CLICK
The new cameras clicked merrily in one village as he joked with the stoker in charge of a boiler which heated water for the men's baths. With the record book in his keeping, it is this corporal's duty promptly to report those who do not pay their weekly call.

It can be stated on excellent authority that the unified command in France with these destinations efficiently. Viscount Gort, Commander-in-Chief of the British Field Forces, is under the orders of General Maurice Gamelin, Commander-in-Chief of the French National Defence Staff. They are working aircraft in the North of France area. No raid developed and the air-raid signal was given shortly after 1:30 p.m.

WAGE DISPUTE SETTLED
On the home front a national tribunal awarded railway workers the 30 shillings (about $10) a week minimum they asked in a strike threat just before war broke out. Although a date was fixed for the strike, it was called off because of the outbreak of hostilities.

The award is subject to acceptance by the workers and employers. It would involve wage increases totaling nearly $1,000,000 (about $4,000,000).

About 350,000 Lancashire cotton workers were granted a 12½ per cent wage increase under agreements reached at Manchester.

The Board of Education started school children gathering acorns and beech nuts to feed pigs. A memorandum sent to 10,000 rural schools said acorns were more nourishing than oats and beans.

LOSSES IN POLAND
The Foreign Office announced today that a "reliable neutral source" had informed it "there was every reason to believe German losses in men and material during the Polish campaign were much heavier than appeared from German sources."

(Adolf Hitler announced in his Reichstag speech of October 6 that German casualties in Poland were 10,527 killed, 30,322 wounded and 3,404 missing).

The Foreign Office announcement added: "It is said that tanks and mechanized vehicles in particular suffered severely and of those which survived a large number are in need of repair and will not be fit for service again for some months."

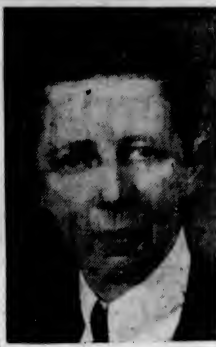

"According to the same source the Polish Air Force acquitted itself with quite remarkable courage. "Pilots whose planes were disabled hardly ever attempted to escape by parachute, but deliberately crashed into one of the German machines attacking them so that both might be destroyed together."

PRESENTATION MADE TO CORPS

Victoria Rainbow Sea Cadets Receive I.O.D.E. Shield For Fifth Time

For the fifth time since the I.O.D.E. Shield for efficiency was put up for competition among British Columbia cadet corps, the Victoria Rainbow Sea Cadets received the award in their Drill Hall, Outer Wharf, last night. Mrs. Curtis Sampson, second vice-president of the provincial chapter, made the presentation on behalf of the women's organization.

Lieut.-Commander P. W. Tribe received the shield on behalf of his corps, as the 100 smart cadets stood at attention.

Introduced by Commander C. H. R. Silsbury, vice-president of the Victoria and Island Branch of the Navy League of Canada, Mrs. Sampson congratulated the Victoria corps on its achievement.

FOLLOW EXAMPLE
For the first time in history, she said, Sea Cadet corps had served as guards for Their Majesties, during their visit here. She urged all to try and follow the wonderful example set by the King and Queen in the present struggle. Mrs. Sampson paid a brief tribute to the memory of Peter Piddington, formerly a warrant officer in the corps, who was lost with the H.M.S. Royal Oak.

Later the assembly stood with bowed heads for the young midshipman, while Bugle Instructor B. Drysdale sounded the Last Post and the flag was lowered.

Commander Tribe expressed the appreciation of the corps on winning the award, and spoke of the keen competition experienced. He said the corps had been successful, due to the hearty co-operation of the cadets.

GERMAN REPARATIONS
Reparations Germans continued to arrive in Göttingen (Gdynia) and Danzig. Most of those arriving from the Baltic countries were professional people—doctors, teachers, artists, lawyers—from 15 to 20 per cent were farmers.

The Government today opened a system of special short-term credits for businesses throughout the Reich which have been hard hit by the war, to prevent bankruptcies and sharp disruptions in national economy.

ITALY UNRUFFLED
ROME, Oct. 20 (AP)—Italy's calm acceptance today of the British-French-Turkish Mutual Assistance Pact was interpreted by diplomats tonight as a new harbinger of continued peace in the Mediterranean.

The calm contrasted sharply with violent attacks on the proposed pact published in the Fascist press last Summer.

Fascists then condemned the prospective agreement as part of a French-British "encirclement" policy, anti-Italian in effect.

The serenity with which Rome accepted the final signing of the treaty—which made Turkey a potential enemy in case of Italian military aid to Germany—accordingly was taken by diplomats as further assurance that Italy is determined to remain aloof from the war.

Some diplomatic quarters considered it possible that Great Britain might utilize the situation to promote better relations between Italy and Turkey. It was suggested that the two countries might be persuaded to exchange assurances of neighborly intentions and eliminate suspicions which bred tension in the East.

SESSION STAFF IS ASSEMBLING

Quiet Opening Ceremonies Expected For B.C. Legislature This Year

Sessional staffs were gathering yesterday for the third session of the Nineteenth Legislature, to open on October 31. W. Q. Weston, sergeant-at-arms; Captain W. R. Webster, deputy sergeant-at-arms, and J. Neary, assistant deputy, were already at work with other staffs to be named shortly. Pages have been chosen, and fitted for new uniforms. The opening this year will be without display, conforming to wartime conditions. Uniform guards will be in service dress, and the customary salute of field guns may be dispensed with.

The formal ball and state functions at Government House will not be held this year, though an informal reception has been announced for the opening day, after the ceremonies conclude at the Legislative Buildings.

NUMBERED DRAFTS

One change will occur in the presentation of legislation, Premier Pattullo announcing yesterday that the legal department would produce draft bills with numbered lines to assist discussion in committee and other stages of review by the House. On final printing the numbering will be dropped.

So far only routine legislation has been forecast, though a gathering press of amending bills from departmental offices may make their appearance before the session is over. The Provincial Elections Act will be up for review, with suggested rewording of the franchise provisions. The legal department will also be asked to consider amendments to the simplified voters' registration.

The formal House opening will take place at 3 p.m. on October 31, with public invitation lists said now to have been completed.

SURVIVORS TELL TALE OF FEAR

lowing it all day. Half an hour later the submarine struck at the 7,000-ton City of Mandalay. More than 200 passengers were aboard the vessel.

The Independence Hall got an SOS. From the Yorkshire and then from the City of Mandalay.

Two of the Mandalay lifeboats were awash, with scores of people floating in the heavy sea girded in lifebelts. By the time the freighter reached it the City of Mandalay was breaking in two. Rescue work took two hours because of the tremendous seas.

Tons of oil were thrown in a lifebelt was rescued, but its mother died.

A NEW TERROR
As the busy Independence Hall passengers did what they could to help and watched the terrorizing scene, a submarine believed the same as that which sank the English boats suddenly emerged from the sea near the rescue freighter.

Both survivors and passengers aboard the rescue ship screamed their fright, the passengers said, but the submarine merely signalled, "How many have you saved?"

The weary crew of the Independence Hall then set out for the Yorkshire, but was unable to reach that spot for six hours.

The Yorkshire had gone down in nine minutes after it was torpedoed, survivors said. Those rescued were in lifeboats. The victims long since had disappeared beneath the waves.

MOONLIGHT HELPS
Brilliant moonlight aided the crew of the Independence. Here the freighter, its accommodations already crowded with its own sixty passengers, took aboard approximately 300 more and then turned toward Bordeaux.

Women took turns sleeping in available cabins which the regular passengers deserted for the emergency. Many of them slept on floors. Many were without shoes when they jumped into the icy sea. Bundled in blankets, they then slept on the open deck and in the carpenter shop. Others less hardy were given the heat of the engine room.

CO-ORDINATION OF INDUSTRY PLANNED

The Victoria branch of the C.M.A. was asked by Mr. Mayhew to appoint a committee to endeavor to co-ordinate all plants, in its own district, and in the suggestion the Chamber of Commerce was asked to appoint representatives to the committee.

OPENING OFFICE
The joint committee discussed the situation with Mr. Mayhew on several occasions, and determined to approach Messrs. Goldring and J. A. Heritage, who accepted appointments to act as co-ordinators, and are opening an office at the Chamber of Commerce in the Arcade Building.

During the last war, Mr. Goldring was director of all plants of the Canadian General Electric Company engaged in the manufacture of munitions, and in that capacity

Great Naval Battle
Fought and Won
Just 133 Years AgoHero of British Navy Destroyed the Combined
Fleets of France and Spain off Cape
Trafalgar, October 21, 1806

THE famous battle off Cape Trafalgar took place 133 years ago today. It was the decisive victory of the democratic British people over the French people under a European dictator after long years of ocean warfare. Admiral Villeneuve did not think the French and Spanish squadrons were at this time in condition to put to sea from Cadiz. The dictator Napoleon peremptorily ordered Villeneuve to lead the squadrons to sea and produce a victory.

The victory by Nelson showed that the French admiral was right in his judgment. On land the Grand Army on September 26 was moved from Boulogne and entered Germany, and won the victory over the Austrians at Ulm on October 20, while Austria was won on December 2. The annihilation of the combined enemy fleet removed a great load of fear from the people of Britain and the dread of invasion by the French army at Boulogne. There were still enemy warships on the ocean, but there were no powerful squadrons of ships-of-the-line.

Let me quote Mr. H. W. Wilson: "The letters of Nelson are most instructive on the human side of leadership in sea warfare. In 1803, Nelson stated that he would not have fought Villeneuve's fleet on the voyage back from the West Indies, because 'All the way home I am getting stronger and he is getting weaker. If we fell in with him now and fought him, I don't doubt we should beat him, and it would be a great thing for my personal glory; but I should be doing my country a great wrong, I know that in a week's time I shall get reinforcements and he will get none, and then I must annihilate him.'"

NOT HOT-BRAINED
On another occasion in the same campaign he said: "Do not imagine that I am one of those hot-brained people who fight at an immense disadvantage without an adequate object."

Though he urged commanders to put victory above the safety of the ships and said that nothing great was done by officers who feared the shore, in 1803 he cautioned one of his friends with whom he thought exceeding daring: "If you are too weak for such an attack you must desist. It would be much better to let the French ships escape."

Nelson's Flagship in Stone Drydock

Britain's great sea hero and his flagship, the Victory, will be honored wherever the British flag floats today. The picture shows the historic old vessel in her permanent berth in Portsmouth's oldest dock, where the old hull and her appointments are being zealously preserved. Through the efforts of the Society for Nautical Research the Victory was, some years ago, placed in her present position and fitted as she originally sailed to do battle with the combined squadrons of France and Spain off Cape Trafalgar.

Heroes and chiefs in valour's opening bloom,
Frequent, in solemn pilgrimage stand,
And vow to prize, like thee, their native land;
With pious ardour thy bright course pursue.
And bid thy blended virtues live anew,
Thy skill to plan; thy enterprise to dare;
Thy might to strike; thy clemency to spare;
That seal, in which no thought of self had part,
But thy lowly country fill'd up all thy heart;
That conscious worth, from pride, from manners free,
And manners mild as guileless infancy;
The scorn of worldly wealth; the thirst of fame;
Unquenchable; the blush of generous shame;
And bounty's genial flow, and friendship's holy flame.

For many years the shrine of the British Navy has been H.M. Ship "Victory" at Portsmouth, first swinging to her moorings in the harbor, but in 1922 placed in the oldest drydock in the Empire. During the year 1928 the number of visitors was 123,123; the figure for August of that year was 58,674. When the Victory was in the harbor the annual total was about 18,000. But in those days the visitors had to hire a Portsmouth wherry from the "Hard" to go aboard the famous ship.

Now the British Navy is again at war with a world dictator, but the Victory for the first time sees the mobilization and war activities from her old stone dock shore. One great honor is still hers; she bravely flies the flag of the Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth.

RESCUE VESSEL IS TOTAL LOSS
Motorship Martha Runs Ashore While Searching For Missing Barge

UNALASKA, Alaska, Oct. 20 (AP)—Two men adrift in their lighter in Bristol Bay since October 10 were safe today, but the motorship Martha, which went to their aid, was grounded on Walrus Island, near Herd Island.

The vessel lost her rudder in a severe storm yesterday, and was driven ashore, where she was abandoned by the crew. The vessel was believed to be a total loss, according to reports here.

The missing men, Nick Holstein and Jocko Kelnickoff, were found twenty miles west of Ugashik, where their scow had been wrecked on the beach. Included in the wreckage was fifty tons of winter food supplies, badly needed for Eskimo village. The supplies were a total loss.

HAD ENOUGH
OF TAI PINGDanish Member of Junk's
Crew Seeks Berth on Stauncher Ship

Carl Kragh, Danish sailor, had just been discharged from a Kobe hospital when the Chinese junk Tai Ping arrived there from Shanghai with three of the Chinese crew who had been signed on in the North China port suffering from severe attacks of seasickness.

The passage from the international city on the Woonung to the Japanese port had been too much for the Chinese sailors, but the junk nevertheless looked pretty good to a sailor without a berth in Kobe. There was the opportunity to sail on an adventurous trip, and in addition the prospect of a 10 per cent "cut" in any money which curiosity-seekers at the San Francisco Fair might pay to look over the strange craft on its arrival there.

So Carl Kragh went aboard the Tai Ping as one of the crew. He doesn't exactly regret it, although it was the toughest experience he encountered in his fourteen years of seafaring, he told newspapermen yesterday. Adverse winds, strong from the east, southeast, and few of the westerlies which generally prevail in the latitude the skipper of the junk chose for his course, and a craft with no keel to stand up to unfavorable winds and seas, upset all calculations.

GALE AFTER GALE
For three weeks after the craft left Kobe, gale after gale was experienced. Then there was a break of seventeen days when the breezes were fair and good progress was made; but the bad weather set in again, and for eighty-seven days out of the 112 days it needed to reach Quinsino, the junk was constantly battered by the seas and headed by strong gales.

The Tai Ping was well provisioned for a seventy-day trip when she left Kobe and there would have been enough food to complete it had the junk met with any kind of favoring weather. So it happened that every one had to be rationed, and the voyagers were down to the last ration and had decided to feast on the junk's dog and cat when the Queen Charlotte Islands were sighted and the U.S. Geodetic Survey ship Discoverer, from Bering Sea for Seattle, happened along and gave the Tai Ping some much-appreciated supplies.

The adventure ended for Kragh at Quinsino, where the Tai Ping was towed by a fisherman, the Danish sailor being anxious to receive treatment for injury, which lack of fresh food and no limejuice had promoted. A few barracuda and some bonito, the former caught on the Japan Coast and the latter when the junk was nearing the Queen Charlotte Islands, were the only fresh food they had for eighty days. The Danish sailor is now anxious to get a berth on a stauncher seagoing craft than a thirty-ton junk with a flat bottom, drawing only three feet of water.

GOOD NAVIGATOR
Kragh paid a number of compliments to Captain John Anderson and Mrs. Anderson, the lone woman member of the Tai Ping's company. An expert navigator and seasoned seaman, Captain Anderson did a clever job of navigating, while Mrs. Anderson was the best seagoing woman the young Dane had ever seen aboard a vessel. Without any other assistance than a compass—lacking chronometer, sextant and log—the general direction had been kept fairly well, although currents and wind drift had set the craft away to the north of her course.

Familiar with the China Coast, Kragh is hoping to get back there again, and will take the first ship that needs an experienced seaman. He doesn't want to go back to Denmark just yet, and in this connection Robert Roff and his staff of the immigration service here will help to further the young man's wishes as soon as possible.

Fruitless

PORT LEWIS, Wash., Oct. 20 (AP)—A recommendation that search be abandoned for a Washington national guard plane that crashed in British Columbia last week is being forwarded to the War Department in Washington, D.C., Major Mark W. Clark, Fort Lewis Public Relations officer, reported today.

Major G. H. Gale, who went to British Columbia to direct the U.S. Army's search, returned to the fort last night and reported five days of hunting in the wilderness near Keefers were fruitless, Major Clark said.

Private W. Shane, who parachuted to safety from the crashing plane, returned here with Major Gale. Lieutenant Edward B. Saxon, of Spokane, who became lost while piloting Shane from Fells Field to Gray Field here, also bailed out of the national guard plane safely. The missing ship was assigned to the national guard at Spokane.

LOYALTY TO HITLERISM

Those who believe that there will be a speedy end to the present war because of a revolt in Germany against Hitlerism, would do well to bear in mind what the present ruler accomplished for the people there during his term of leadership. He wiped out the stigma of Versailles by translations both swift and dramatic. It is true he did so inspired by the idea that force counts for most in the affairs of the world, but the German people, or at least a great proportion of them, and especially the young, believe that Herr Hitler, and Herr Hitler alone, has made their country respected again amongst the nations. With territory occupied, with conquests achieved, the population of Greater Germany is now approaching the 100,000,000 mark. It was little more than half that on the opening of the Great War.

Those who have visited Germany within the past year say they cannot see the youth of the country breaking with the military machine, and youth is numbered in its millions. Revolt of the civil population under Hitlerism is unlikely, because of the fear inspired by the Gestapo. There are secret agents in workshops, in factories, on the streets, keeping watch and ward over the people and reporting the expression of any dissenting opinions. Power in Germany is, as it never was before, in the hands of the Government, and so long as the Army, which is disciplined and thinks as an army and as a nation, remains loyal, there can be no successful revolution. The Army, at present at least, idolizes Herr Hitler, and is ready enthusiastically to obey his slightest word. Propaganda conducted by the Allies designed to weaken military morale in Germany falls on barren ground.

This understanding, more than any other, should make it clear that a heavy task lies ahead of the Allies. It is possible that, as the economic pressure increases, the people of Germany, perhaps even the Army, will begin to lose faith in the ideals of Hitlerism. That time may be a long way off, for the agencies of propaganda, which manufacture delusions and falsehoods, seem to be cleverer in Germany than anywhere else. This means that the German people can go on being deceived over a long period, especially if their fighting forces suffer no major reverses. Until that time they will believe in their invincibility, a doctrine which has been carefully nursed by the present rulers. The quickest way to end the war is by the defeat of Germany in the field. The slower way is by a drawn-out process of attrition. The value of propaganda to undermine German resistance is probably greatly overestimated. There is a type of counter-propaganda in which the Reich seems to be skilled beyond other countries.

CENSORSHIP OF MAIL

—CBI—

Censorship can be regarded as a necessary evil. It is holding up letters, and debarring newspapers from certain news, and it is suspicious about many things that are secret code. The fog of war is shrouding people from one another; there is even something in the nature of a blackout in correspondence. The result is that there are fewer letters written, which dismays would-be recipients, though it may lighten the work of censorship. The Times of London, says that "it is one of the minor phenomena of the present time that we receive fewer letters." It is only right, in part, as to the reason for this because it does not mention censorship. It attributes the decline in correspondence to other causes.

Censorship, however, has not only delayed the mails, but rendered them less voluminous. The task of seeing if information of value is being exchanged is approached with suspicion, and exchanged is no general rule governing the practice. The perfectly harmless contents of a letter, written in a vernacular understood by the writer and the one to whom it is written, arouse misgivings in the heart of a censor, and so to be on the safe side the letter is confiscated, pigeon-holed, perhaps even destroyed. It is right that the utmost care should be exercised, but there should be some general rules governing censorship so that it does not interrupt or break down correspondence between individuals.

There is the case, too, of the censorship of newspapers sent through the mails. Apparently some matter appearing in American newspapers is not regarded as suitable for the eyes of people in the United Kingdom, so it is excised. The same has happened in the case of newspapers from this country sent to Great Britain, and presumably the matter considered to be unsuitable for British consumption is certain dispatches of The Associated Press of the United States. Censorship must employ a large number of individuals for the purpose of examining the mails. The probability is that a considerable percentage has had no previous training for the task, and that some at least make idiotic blunders. What The Times of London, calls a "minor phenomenon" of the present time, namely that fewer letters are received, must be laid, in the main, at the door of censorship, which has shown in many instances that it is over-zealous in its duties.

THE AMERICAN DILEMMA

Can it be possible that there still exist, in the remote corners of the American mind, some lingering traces of that ancient grudge against the rest of the English-speaking world which began at the time of the revolt of the colonies a hundred and fifty years ago? Men of good will generally thought that they saw in the affectionate welcome accorded by the American people to the King and Queen a convincing proof that the ancient grudge was dead. During recent months, however, a good deal of bitter criticism has been directed against British public men and British policy, particularly in regard to the situation in Europe. There is a touch of animosity in it. Much of this criticism, to be sure, is not very accurately informed as to the facts of the case; some of the reasoning is more ingenious than ingenious, and not a few of the opinions are expressed in language that seems odd in an old neighbor that shares our traditions and is closely related to us in race and blood.

Perhaps, however, a simpler explanation may serve to account for the rather querulous and fault-finding attitude of our good neighbors. What is really disturbing them at the moment is the conflict in their own minds as to the part they ought to play in the present international drama. A great many Americans, in public life and private life alike, are asserting with great emphasis that the chief duty of the United States is to keep out of war. At the same time nearly everyone in the country is equally emphatic in denouncing Hitlerism as dangerous to the peace of the world. Another cause of unrest in the American mind is its almost morbid fear of propaganda. Many of them have succeeded in persuading themselves that the country was drawn into the Great War by the skillful use of persuasion and propaganda.

In point of fact, the entry of the Americans into the Great War was brought about, not by the solicitations of the Allies, but by the menacing and insulting conduct and criminal folly of the Central Powers. The Americans went in because their national safety, were in jeopardy. At the present time there is not the slightest necessity to employ propaganda in order to enlist the Americans on the side of law and order. The gangsters now in power in Germany can be trusted to fill the minds of all decent people with righteous anger and disgust at the kind of "civilization" and "kultur" in vogue in that unhappy land.

It is nothing to the discredit of the Americans that they are anxious to avoid war. Their present mood, as an American journalist has pointed out, coincides exactly with our own mood of a year ago. After all, whatever differences of opinion exist as to the wisdom of removing the arms embargo, nothing can prevent the growth of a sound public opinion upon the great issues, or the final triumph of democratic ideals of human freedom and justice.

PACIFISTS AND OTHERS

Since Russia became an ally of Germany, to the extent of sharing with the latter country in the perpetration of power politics, it has become necessary for all countries at war with the Reich to keep close watch on the Communists in their midst. In Great Britain both Scotland Yard and the Home Office have undertaken this duty, and the watch is extended to Fascists and to former pro-Germans, as well as those who are carrying on a pamphlet campaign endeavoring to bring about peace on Herr Hitler's terms. The Communist Daily Worker is still published in England; so is the Mosleyites' magazine Action, but both are kept under strict surveillance. So are the activities of the Peace Pledge Union which recently cabled President Roosevelt of the United States, asking him to take action towards calling a truce.

The same vigilance should be exercised in this country where there are individuals, and even members of a political party engaged in propaganda designed to weaken Canada's efforts in the war. There was a time when these individuals, while supporting Communism, were bitterly opposed to Nazism. Now their allegiance is to both. They do not want Canada to participate in a war in which Russia is the ally of the enemy of the British Empire. Such individuals, by word and deed, favor the war aims of totalitarianism and see no reason for accepting the liberty of mankind. They are more concerned with political isms than they are with human freedom. At a time like this they constitute a menace within democracies.

The British people have one consolation for their blackouts. They have better radio reception because of the extinction of neon signs.

Note and Comment

By SANDHAM GRAVES

For three days this column has been trying to analyze for itself the peculiar and lingering charm of the film version of "Goodbye, Mr. Chips." The characters simply will not fade. Mr. Chips, his charming wife and his ebullient friend have won on touring and mountain climbing, meeting and parting, living and, in the case of Mr. Chips, dying, right to spring to life again right around the very next corner. They became very real, and very likeable people, which, of course, was a triumph of art.

This time it is the silver screen that triumphs. James Hilton's book prepared few people for Mr. Chips' goodbye on the photographed stage. One aches now to see the same cast on the stage. Fresh and blood people, speaking over the footlights in the first person. No doubt in a literal sense that would be impossible. But this isn't goodbye to Mr. Chips. It simply cannot be. Too many people are interested. If it has to be "goodbye," they will want to witness the parting again. There is charm in the thing.

What is its charm? It is not that of a vanished age, because the war-time news reel following the picture could have been mistaken for one of its scenes. Indeed, this column pinched itself quietly in three places to make sure on that head. The same young and eager faces, marching out to war; the same gaps at the head and at the tail; the same "regrets" in 1939 as in 1914. Only a generation had moved along. Young men had become old men. Their sons were off to war. The tragic continuity persisted; and it was strangely moving.

Good acting we have had before, acting where there are no "star" parts, but where each member of the cast appears to be a living person, and fitted precisely into the right place. To make a living whole. It is then that a story really comes to life; it is credited; takes possession of the senses, the emotions, and establishes its own illusion as the real thing. This illusion lingers. Mr. Chips will not be less; will not die. The mind brings him back again and again, trying for a happier case for him, a fuller life and ending. The sympathy is caught and held.

Fidelity in setting and atmosphere we have had before. The old school, both as the facility, the traditions and all the rest of it; alone they cannot weave such a spell. There may have been some people who remembered the setting; if so it was very real for them; but it was real for everybody. The action made it so. The school became types, in whom one could picture every other school, almost every other child; with, again, the ironic continuity of growth and development towards a disaster. But "old schools" are out of date. Ordinarily people are not much interested in them. This school came alive, with the hardness and cruelty of youth, the triumph and defeat of middle age, with the mellowness and wisdom of age. Even its walls had character.

The charm of the piece was deeper than all that. There was an interplay of human values that might fit any age, and be valid in any language. The fortunes of this man became tremendously, profoundly important, his trials poignant; and his triumphs a personal relief out of all proportion to what the average onlooker had at stake. The average onlooker, however, had long since projected himself into the piece; had become Mr. Chips. That, also, was a triumph of art.

There was a broad challenge to it, too. Was one asked to anxiously, more than Mr. Chips passing? Was it an appeal to the school ship, loyalty, human kindness, integrity, and all that once made a whole man passing with the age, into the man of a new age? How would they fare in 1918? Through the conference of the thought, Chips seemed a character in the immediate present, watching the self-same news reels. Urgency, anxiety, and life flowed from the piece into the audience. Mr. Chips became a symbol; and his fate the future of nations. Perhaps it was not all in the picture. A little of it may have been in the times in which we live. If that is so, Mr. Chips cannot pass. We cannot afford to let him go.

FIFTY YEARS AGO TODAY

(From The Daily Colonist of October 21, 1889)

New Ship—Captain J. H. Reimer, master of the new German bark J. H. Husted, which sails today for London, will upon his arrival in the Old Country, build another ship upon exactly the same lines. The Husted is built under Capt. Reimer's personal supervision, and has met his every expectation. By marine men she has been pronounced the finest vessel that ever entered Royal Roads.

To Visit U.S.A.—An Ottawa dispatch to the Seattle Post-Intelligencer says: "It is expected that Lord Stanley, Canadian Governor-General, will arrive at Victoria, B.C. November 1. After remaining there for three days he has been decided to take the steamer to San Francisco and return to the Union Pacific. He will visit all the leading cities along the line, and probably Washington.

Guard of Honor—The B.C.B.O.A. will form a Guard of Honor to receive His Excellency Lord Stanley on his landing at Victoria. "C" Battery will form a royal salute from the esplanade in front of the Government Buildings.

Sign in a defunct cafe: "Two Horse-Power Hot Dogs." Perhaps the sign helped to put the place out of business. Bill, the Broad Street barber, told the boss that he had a buck tooth which bothered him considerably. He was told to grin and bare it. If Bernard, in the same shop, is said to call his jalousy a "Roosevelt," he does not know if it will run again. Our G.B.C. correspondent has turned his hand to inventing as an antidote for long winter evenings. When last heard he was working on a water-proof pencil so that divers could scribble their names on the bottoms of ships, and a sun roof for hats to enable bald-headed men to acquire a sun tan. After a spirited lift, Salesman Horace told his better half that he had been thinking things over and had decided to agree with her. "It will not do any good now. I have changed my mind," she replied. Chinese value for medicine the bark of a tree struck by lightning. Aubrey points out that white persons value water that has a few volts injected at a distillery. Africa was formerly called the Dark Continent. Today it is Europe which bears the name—G.B.

Glancing Over Sport

The home stretch finish of Phil Taylor and Ken Black in the charity golf exhibition on Thursday at the Oak Bay links against Bud Ward and Ken Tucker was brilliant. They came from behind, with defeat staring them in the face, to drive through to victory, and in doing so co-operated in grand fashion. The highlight of the match was the Black putting on the fourteenth for a drive, but it was no use. Ward, more determined than at any time during the battle, studied his forty-footer and canned it for a half. A lad of Ward's reputation could have played better golf by not hurrying to catch the afternoon boat for Seattle. Ward is one of the foremost shot-makers on the continent. Take his record during the last year and it bears out my statement. He won the U.S. amateur crown very convincingly in the final, was runner-up in the U.S. open tournament with the class of pros, competing; captured top honors in the Oakland $5,000 open; went to the semi-finals of the San Francisco match play meet, beating some of the best professionals in the United States; was a member of the 1928 Walker Cup team, and set a new record at St. Andrews of 67.

And further, he led the Northwest qualifiers for the national amateur the last four years, so don't tell me that that Ward cannot play golf, when he wants to get down to serious business—J.D.

BOURNEMOUTH

Sir—It was good to read the fair letter of Mrs. Henderson—following the dispassionate one by Mr. Goodlake, who, whilst running down the old houses (and not mentioning the new) failed to write of the beauties of Bournemouth—one of the loveliest of the English seaside resorts.

If the front at Victoria were laid out like the Upper Pleasure Gardens, Pavilion Rockeries, Pine Walk and Central Gardens at Bournemouth, there would, I feel sure, be fewer houses here for sale, and you would not hear "I did on the train people say, 'Oh, Victoria, that's where you can buy houses for half price, isn't it?'"

Leaders Rest in Lower Territory On Wall Street

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—The war-buying fever cooled in today's stock market, and recently buoyant leaders took a rest in lower territory.

While there were few weak spots in the list, closing declines of fractions to a point or so predominated. A smattering of merchandising, utility and specialty issues managed to emerge with modest plus signs.

It was the second solid session of the week, transfers for the five hours totaling 786,880 shares against 1,161,240 the day before. The Associated Press average of sixty stocks went down 2-1/4 points.

Wall Street apparently was more confused than ever regarding what is going on in Europe. Failure of the Scandinavian conference to bring out any peace proposal led some to wonder whether an armistice move might come from other sources.

Forecasts that next week's steel mill operations should equal if not exceed those of the current week found stocks in this category unresponsive. Rails jogged along indifferently in the face of exceptionally bright traffic and income figures. Excellent corporation earnings statements, extra dividends and other economic items propped shares here and there, but left the market as a whole unimpressed.

Up 1 to around 3 were preferred issues of American & Foreign Power, Electric Power & Light and Thermoid. Improved were General Foods, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Philip Morris and Kenmore. United States Government bonds today gained an average of 1/2 point each.

Corporates broke about even. Substantial advances were scored by French, Italian, Australian, Danish and Norwegian issues.

Quarantined Passport— Train Trip to Colon— En Route for Rio

By Spy

Port-of-Spain, Trinidad. Sounded not the least like pernambuco or Rio; however, it was a step (almost) in the right direction; and to make the idea a trifle less fanciful or fantastic the agent vowed that I'd have the choice of several banana boats going south from Port-of-Spain; so, fully glibly, I once more outclassed myself as a sucker, and said "O.K."

So arrangements were made, and I then trudged out to the Quarantine Station to pick up my passport, which they had taken on landing. Just why a passport should be detained at a Quarantine Station was rather puzzling. It has been a sort of habit (a weak one presumably) for me to believe that Quarantine stations were for the detention of the hall, the blind, the maimed and those foully diseased—so just what sort of passport was now being marked my passport was impossible to conjecture, for how on earth could a passport be a leper or an "incurable"?

I've seen plenty of greasy tropical passports that could and should be classed as "untouchables"—but, in fact, no quarantines were designed to deal with such official—hence my undying curiosity as to just why they kept that passport at the quarantine? Anyway, at the Quarantine Station a sleek uniformed official, after many superficial preliminaries, said that unless I could produce my steamer ticket on the spot, he could not release the passport.

I told him that the ticket could only be bought at Cristobal—forty-six miles away and since we were now in Panama I thought his request rather difficult, if not impossible. But the official did not feel that way at all, and ordered that I was mere child's play to entrain for Cristobal and then return with the ticket. I then asked him if the Panama Republic would care to pay for my return fare and the necessary one-night stopover at Cristobal. To that he replied acidly, "The British think they are very, very smart—yes?" to which I could have said a lot of things concerning comparisons with Panamanians, who, in the first instance were hardly capable of thinking at all. However, even at this stage I could sniff a brewing revolution, so I refrained and said, "No, not particularly; but I think your procedure both unnecessary and unreasonable."

"And I do not," the official replied, "I do not." The official snatched his lips together in smug finality, and began rat-tatting his desk, indicating that he had already allowed himself more of me than was necessary for his peace of mind. "All right," I shrugged, "I'll return with my ticket, but I'll be damned if I'll let the American con you know him!" The official's eyebrows were immediately two black enquiringing "Vs." "Certainly," I lied breezily, "Known him for years."

My inquirer then began humming some indecipherable tune, and my bile was stalling. My lies were beginning to scratch. Presently he said nonchalantly, "Well, maybe I'll be able to consult with my confederates, and mail your passport to Cristobal. Give me the agent's address, and tomorrow I'll let you know if you've got your ticket. Yes," he added gravely, "I think that can be arranged."

It seemed the only solution, so the conference broke up, and I began hurrying along for the hotel. There, while packing my handkerchief and other soft, I felt strangely dubious. If I bought that ticket, and if the passport did not arrive before date of sailing, I'd then be the proud proprietor of a worthless ticket worth two hundred dollars and a passport floating about somewhere between Panama and Korea. However, it looked like a case of "an egg in the hand is worth at least the beginnings of a bird in the bush," so I conceded to that and hoped that my egg would hatch prematurely and sound.

So be it. At 5:30 that afternoon, with handkerchief and other soft secure in my steamer trunk, the train was boarded for Colon.

The train trip to Cristobal (or rather to Colon) was quite enjoyable. The sight and sound of a big, black fuzzy locomotive interests me today as much as it used to when toffee first dribbled on to the "dickies" of my little sailor suit. There's something fascinating about a train, whether it's rolling through wheat-waving prairie, or snaking through the tunnels and canyons in the Rockies. But when it's clipping through palm trees and coconuts, it's something else again.

REQUIEM MASS WILL BE SUNG

Bishop Cody to Officiate at Funeral of Rev. Father
W. L. Heynen

REV. FATHER W. L. HEYENEN

Pontifical Requiem Mass will be celebrated in St. Andrew's Cathedral by Most Rev. John C. Cody, Bishop of Victoria, at 9:30 o'clock this morning for the repose of the soul of Rev. Father William Lambert Heynen, who died in St. Joseph's Hospital on Wednesday.

The eighty-three-year-old priest came here from Holland, his birthplace, fifty-nine years ago and was active in missionary work in Alaska and on the island.

At 8:15 o'clock last night the priests of the parish recited the Office for the Dead, and the body lay in state throughout the night, the various church organizations serving as a guard of honor, reciting the Rosary every hour.

McCall Bros' Funeral Home is in charge of the funeral arrangements, and interment will be made in Ross Bay Cemetery, adjoining the grave of Rev. Father Verbeke, another missionary priest who came here in the early days.

RETURN HOME WAS DELAYED

John Oliver and F. L. Kitto
Held Up in England by War Conditions

Delayed in England by war conditions for more than two weeks, John Oliver, a member of the Saanich Council, and Frank L. Kitto, Saanich municipal relief officer, returned to Victoria yesterday.

Messrs. Oliver and Kitto traveled to England as passengers aboard the S.S. Empress of Britain, and landed the day before war was declared. With her crew of 600, carried only 180 passengers, many having canceled their reservations at the last minute.

Mr. Kitto, who went to England to visit his mother in Oxford, intended to remain there for three weeks, but was forced to wait another two weeks before he could get passage back to Canada.

He was particularly impressed with the efficiency of the Royal Air Force, which he declared yesterday was unquestionably the finest in the world.

The ship in which Messrs. Oliver and Kitto returned to Canada carried 1,400 passengers, every berth being taken. Many of the passengers were nervous during the crossing, and their fears were increased by the apprehension of a number of survivors of the Athens who were included in the passenger list. However, the trip was made without untoward incident, other than a severe storm, which lasted for six days. The ship had a naval convoy for the first two days.

Police Officers Gain Promotions

Constable Charles J. Webb was promoted to first class constable, and Constables John D. Blackstock and John W. Mason to the second class category, at a meeting of the city police commission yesterday afternoon.

Inspector Walter Caldwell, Detectives Louis Callan and Maurice Wilkinson, and Constables R. Mailand and J. Davidson were introduced to commissioners by Chief J. A. McLean.

A detailed report on the International Association of Police Chiefs was given by the chief. He was congratulated by the commission chairman.

Tenders of Robert Rankin to supply thirty-seven pairs of trousers and nine topcoats for $606.98 were accepted. It was decided to install a collapsible safety gate on the police station elevator.

WARNING TO NEUTRALS

BERLIN, Oct. 20 (AP)—Dienst Aus, semi-official commentary reflecting Foreign Office opinion, said today that Germany had called attention of neutral powers to the fact that it is not permissible for neutral ships to travel in the convoy of belligerent warships. It added that Germany had told neutrals that such vessels are "running the risk of being sunk according to internationally recognized laws of warfare."

City & District

Tree Removal—In a letter to the City Council, Miss A. Newman objected to the removal of trees on Chestnut Street. In the event of removal, she suggested that smaller trees be planted in their places.

Foot Fined—Two motorists were each fined $2.50 in the city police court for failing to have rear lights on their cars. Another was fined $5 for neglecting to have a driver's licence. One was fined $2.50 for parking over the hour limit.

Fuel Licences Issued—Thirteen retail fuel licences were issued by the Provincial Fuel Control Board on Thursday with Government consent. Twelve dealt with retail gasoline licences, and one with permission to sell coal.

Is Remanded—Charged in the city police court with unlawfully marketing potatoes, other than through the agency designed by the Coast Vegetable Marketing Board, Cee Lee Yuen was remanded to next Friday for trial.

Say Hunting Changed—Protests against removal of North Saanich to hunters on Sundays were being filed yesterday with the Provincial Game Branch. In other years Sunday shooting in Saanich was barred throughout, it was explained.

Breaks Arm—Frank Williams, Thetis Lake Road, fractured his left arm near the shoulder yesterday afternoon when cracking an automobile. He was conveyed to the police station, and from there to the Jubilee Hospital.

Returns to Empress—F. George Walker, who has been acting as assistant manager at the Royal Alexandra Hotel, Winnipeg, during the Summer months, has returned with Mrs. Walker to the city and resumed his duties as assistant manager at the Empress Hotel.

Cow By-Law—Charged in the city police court yesterday with unlawfully keeping more than two cows each, four owners of cows were remanded until October 28 for trial. A fifth owner was remanded until the following day. Arthur J. Patton appeared for most of the defendants.

Jewelry Taken—Yesterday Saanich police reported stolen from the district a Hamilton twenty-one-jewel watch, a key-winding silver watch, two sets of gold cuff links, gold nugget pin, gold nugget ring, topaz and amethyst rings, gold coin brooch and a glass snuff box.

Building Permits—R. Tall secured a $400 city building permit yesterday to convert the second floor of a house at 90 Dallas Road into apartments. Henry J. Enoch secured a permit to alter a house at 533 Simcoe Street into a two-family dwelling at a cost of $800.

School Costs—A circular from the Associated Property Owners of Vancouver, returned to the City Hall yesterday, urged citizens to take up with local members of Parliament a move to transfer all school costs from property owners to the Provincial Government.

Study Wartime Minerals—The Provincial Mines Department has issued a second prospectus, brochure on the sampling of manganese, tungsten, molybdenum, and mercury ore, with explanatory notes as to their grades and values. The booklet may be had upon application to the department.

Change Highway Names—Eliminating duplication of names, the Provincial Government authorized new titles for eight roads in Esquimalt district yesterday, including Beasborough, Kitchener and Quincey Avenues, Kerwood, Cheltenham and St. Giles Streets, and Hart and Mellow Roads.

Victoria's Temperatures—Maximum and minimum temperatures recorded yesterday at the Dominion Meteorological Observatory on Gonzales Hill were 62 and 48 degrees respectively. The maximum at Victoria College was the same as at Gonzales and the minimum 2 degrees higher.

Set Tentative Date—If the highway is completed at that time, British Columbia will take over the Big Bend section of the Trans-Canada Highway from the Dominion for maintenance in June next year. It was decided yesterday at the Provincial Department of Public Works. Work is progressing on the remaining gap in the highway, and will continue, subject to winter weather.

Thanks Council—Thanks for their assistance and co-operation was expressed in a letter to Mayor Andrew McGavie and the City Council from Councillor W. Ellis, civilian protection officer for Greater Victoria. Headquarters of the Greater Victoria Civilian Protection Committee have been moved from the City Hall to the Arcade Building, next to the Chamber of Commerce offices.

Coal Tonnage Up—British Columbia's coal output for September amounted to 115,384 tons, an increase of 5,500 tons over the corresponding month of last year, the Provincial Mines Department said yesterday. Vancouver Island mines contributed 57,713 tons to the total, approximately the same in September, 1938. The main gain was shown in returns from East Kootenay collieries.

License Returned—Application for the return of his driver's licence lost on October 12 was made by a motorist in the city police court yesterday. The card was found in the possession of William A. Hodges who was sentenced on Tuesday to serve one year in prison for unlawfully use of a forged cheque and obtaining money by false pretences with intent to defraud. In handing back the licence to the applicant, Magistrate Henry C. Hall urged him to take better care of it in future.

On her arrival, the bride-to-be received a corsage bouquet. The gifts were concealed in a large decorated pumpkin, and presented to Miss Carter by little Patty Dentith, dressed as a witch. The rooms were decorated with autumn flowers. Contests were enjoyed and prizes were won by Mrs. John Terry, and Misses Hilda McGillivray and Hester Thompson. Supper was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Ackerman and Miss Edna Oiding. The invited guests were Mesdames D. Carter, T. Oiding, E. J. Dentith, W. J. Dentith, F. W. Ackerman, G. McLaughlin and Misses Edna Oiding, Hilda McGillivray, Carol Carter, Hester Thompson (Penitton) and Patty Dentith and Master Ken Oiding.

Dance at Saanichton

The annual ball held last evening in the Saanichton Hall by the members of Mount Newton Lodge, A.F. & A.M., proved an outstanding success, nearly 400 dancers attending. The hall was beautifully decorated with masses of colored leaves and autumn flowers, and a six-piece orchestra was in attendance. The supper arrangements were in the charge of the members of Ruth Chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, and supper was served at long, attractively decorated tables. The ball committee responsible for the success of the evening included Messrs. A. Lock (chairman), A. Sansbury, W. Ibbotson, A. Cook, R. Cliddon, Albert Doney and Harry Dukeman. The proceeds will go towards the lodge funds for charitable purposes.

Music at Empress

The programme of music to be played by the Empress Hotel Orchestra tomorrow evening between 7 and 8:30 o'clock, will include the following numbers: "Ave Maria" (Bach-Gounod); "Mendelssohn Memories" (Mendelssohn); "Moonlight Sonata" (Beethoven); "Serenade" (Haydn); "Regimental Song Waltzes" (Gungl); "Maid of the Mountains" (Simpson); "The Way to the Heart" (Lincke); "Bohemian Suite" (Hume).

Bridge Party Held

Fifteen tables were in progress at the bridge party yesterday afternoon and evening at the home of Mrs. Aubrey Kent, Douglas Street, the party being held in aid of the wool work fund of the Navy League Chapter, I.O.D.E. During the afternoon Mrs. Evan Hanbury also entertained at a bridge party at her home on Graham Street in aid of the same fund.

Home Nursing Classes Will Start Shortly

The Victoria and district branch of the Canadian Red Cross Society is now in a position to commence a number of home nursing classes, and will be glad to have the names of any prospective candidates. Those interested, who have not already done so, are asked to send their names to the honorary secretary, 317 Belmont House (telephone G 3816), and state whether they are free in the afternoon or evening.

Classes of up to twenty-four members will be arranged in different localities according to the number applying in each area. Arrangements with regard to the teaching are in the hands of the home nursing committee, of which Miss Mitchell, superintendent of nurses of the Jubilee Hospital, is chairman, and Miss Crosser, superintendent of the Victorian Order of Nurses, is vice-chairman. Several experienced instructors have already been selected, and will be delegated to the different classes as soon as they are organized. The course consists of eight lectures and the total cost, including a copy of The Nursing Manual, will be $1, this being considered sufficient to cover incidental expenses.

The object of these classes is to give the candidates the ability and confidence to undertake home nursing in an emergency when fully trained nurses might not be available. This course does not qualify a candidate for V.A.D. work. To do this, it is necessary to hold St. John Ambulance certificates both for first aid and home nursing.

Y.P.S. NEWS

METROPOLITAN

The weekly meeting of the Metropolitan Young People's Society was held in the form of a mystery trip on Tuesday. The first stop was the Jewish synagogue, where the group learned of the services held by the rabbi. The group was then led to the Catholic Cathedral. There, Rev. Father Gaudette gave an enlightening talk on the many beautiful features of the interior. Mr. K. C. Symonds will give an address on the Tower of London at the next meeting of the society, to be held October 24.

CATHOLIC

A social evening will be held by the Victoria unit of the Catholic Youth Organization in the Knights of Columbus Hall, Government Street, on Monday, commencing at 8 o'clock. It will continue until 1 a.m. Those in charge of the function are Misses Label Gilroy, Nora O'Connell, Beth Phillipson, Lucille Lawless and Messrs. Don Thompson and Arthur Coanden.

Beaux-Arts Programme Announced

The Halloween party to be held by the Beaux-Arts Society, in the clubrooms, Leighton Road and Duchess Street, on October 31; the informal studio party planned at the new studio of Mr. Savannah shortly, and arrangements for the annual snow ball on Boxing-Day, December 26, at the Empress Hotel, were fully discussed at the general business meeting of the Beaux-Arts Society, held last evening in the clubrooms.

Mr. Savannah presided and gave a synopsis of the activities and programmes arranged for the society until the end of the year. Over thirty new members were welcomed last evening and entered into the discussions during the business meeting when it was announced that the society anticipates producing at least one play in aid of war work. Due to the society not employing a director this year, the dues have been cut in half. As a result of this, amateurs will have more opportunity of taking part in the activities and dramatics.

Mr. Cedric Lefevre was named general convener for the Halloween party, and committees to arrange entertainment and refreshments will be announced shortly. The success of the invitation dance held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Cameron was reported. Approximately a hundred old and new members attended.

BURNSIDE

Burnside P.-T.A. held its first card game of the season on Tuesday at the school. A moving picture show has been arranged for November.

MARGARET JENKINS

The monthly meeting of the Margaret Jenkins Branch was held on Tuesday evening. An increase in attendance was noted, and the membership convener, Mrs. Rowe, reported that the membership of the association had more than trebled that of last year.

Mr. Baylis, the delegate appointed from the association to confer with other delegates in considering plans for Halloween fires, reported that Margaret Jenkins and Sir James Douglas Schools would meet together. An invitation was also extended to pupils of Bank Street School.

A moving picture show is planned for Friday evening, October 27, in the school auditorium, when the new projector, which the association purchased for the use of the school, will be used.

Mrs. Gray reported on additional books in the study group library. These books are for the use of the parents, and may be borrowed and returned at a subsequent date. It was decided to purchase twelve card tables and six dozen cups and saucers. Final plans were made for the bazaar on Friday, November 17, from 3 to 6 p.m. Dr. Murray Anderson gave an instructive talk on "The Growth and Development of the Child," and Miss Cecile King gave two piano selections. At the conclusion of the meeting refreshments were served by Mrs. Unwin and her committee.

Military Styles Are Noteworthy In Paris Display

PARIS, Oct. 20 (AP). — Parisian dressmakers declared war on war today, the first wartime collection of models going on parade in grey and gold salons thronged with spectators.

This opening was the first concrete result of the dressmakers' efforts to combat war conditions that threatened to destroy their business. It was the Mosyueux collection of forty new models.

A practical note was sounded throughout in dark colors, restrained lines and scarcity of trimmings. Tailored suits shown were sturdy tweeds, brown or grey mixtures, with sweaters slightly brighter in contrasting colors. Military-styled coats were on fitted lines, trimmed with brass buttons and shown in "R.A.F. blue," a new navy shade. Some loose Tweed coats were fur lined, and worn with matching suits or skirts. Full circular skirts with swing lines featured lengths just covering the knee. Air raid ensembles were launched in black with pyjamas of heavy crepe and loose coats of wool. These were accompanied by colored hoods and sashes, some of a new bright blue called "alerte" (the French word for air raid warning).

Court of Appeal Victoria Sittings

Turner Dairies et al. vs. W. E. Williams et al.—This action arises out of certain orders issued by the Lower Mainland Dairy Products Marketing Board. These orders directed that milk and milk products were to be distributed to dairies through a certain agency, and fixed the prices to be paid for these products. Some dairy companies have attacked the orders on the ground that they are ultra vires. In joining action, W. E. Williams, K.C., was added as a defendant in his capacity as chairman of the board. He was examined for discovery by Senator Parris and asked a series of questions on the policy of the board and its purpose and intentions in making these orders. He declined to answer these questions on advice of counsel, and the plaintiff companies, therefore, applied to the Supreme Court for an order compelling him to answer the questions. Mr. Justice McDonald granted the necessary order, and this appeal by Williams is from that order. C. H. Locke, K.C., on behalf of Mr. Williams, stated that his client had been joined in his personal capacity as a defendant, and the only relief asked against him was an injunction against taking any steps to enforce the orders against the plaintiff companies. Therefore, any questions asked him in examination should be limited to the issues between the plaintiff and himself. Mr. Williams did not make the orders; they were made by the board as an entity. Therefore, he should not be compelled to comment on the objects or intentions in the minds of the board when the orders were made. Counsel suggested that Mr. Williams was only joined in his personal capacity because the board of servants of the board could not be examined for discovery at all in their capacity of agents for the Crown. "By adding Mr. Williams, the plaintiff is only attempting a left-handed way of examining the board, which, as representing the Crown, is not subject to examination," asserted counsel. Even if servants of the board could be asked questions in judicial proceedings, such questions were limited to the actual external machinery of the board, Mr. Locke continued. It was not relevant in an action brought to set aside the orders as ultra vires to ask questions about the motives, intentions or private inquiries of members of a Government tribunal. The orders must be construed by looking at the written words, not by looking into the minds of the members of the government body. Senator Parris, in replying for the dairy companies, stated that Mr. Williams as a party to the action was properly before the court. Furthermore, the board could not be considered apart from its constituent members, because the board did not have a separate identity. The board was given powers of a corporation, but was not a corporation in law, and therefore did not have a separate personality. To sue the board, he must sue all members personally. This appeal will continue next Wednesday. A soldier went to his colonel and asked for leave to go home to help his wife with her Spring cleaning. "I don't like to refuse you," said the colonel, "but I've just received a letter from your wife saying that you are to use around the house."

The soldier saluted and turned to go. At the door he stopped, turned and remarked: "Colonel, there are two persons in this regiment who handle the truth loosely, and I'm one of them. I'm not married."

Ottawa to Tackle Argo Grid Squad In Feature Game

Unbeaten Football Teams to Clash in Today's Big Match in the East—Several Other Eastern Matches Scheduled—Calgary Bronks To Meet Edmonton Eskimos

TORONTO, Oct. 20 (CP)—Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts, two of the four undefeated, untied teams in the East, come to grips tomorrow in Toronto—and about the safest prediction is that the game should be a humdinger of a game.

On the Eastern sports pages and in other quarters, it had been claimed freely that this is the Rough Riders year. The Riders have substantiated these claims by rolling up an impressive sixty-seven points, against seventeen, in their first two games against Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Royals.

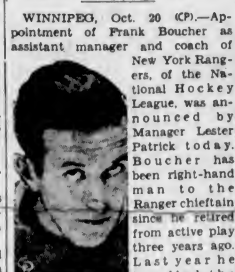

The Argonauts, on the other hand, have tallied only twenty-three points against the same opposition, while having three points scored against them. But many of the wise men like to string along with the champions, and the scullers have won the Canadian crown for the past two years.

And although they admittedly look a little frayed and tattered, and are showing the loss of burly Bob Isler, their star kicker who went to the Hamilton ranks this season, the scullers have risen to the occasion in the past. They have always been the sort of team that played best when the chips were down, and they certainly will be against the Riders on Saturday.

While the Riders and Argonauts

BOUCHER WILL HELP PATRICK

Former Player Made Assistant Manager and Coach Of New York Rangers

FRANK BOUCHER

Winnipeg, Oct. 20 (CP)—Appointment of Frank Boucher as assistant manager and coach of the New York Rangers, of the National Hockey League, was announced today by Manager Lester Patrick today.

Boucher has been right-hand man to the Ranger chief since he retired from active play three years ago. Last year he handled the Rangers' amateur farm club, New York Rovers, of the Eastern United States Amateur League, and the season before his coaching activities were divided between Rovers and Rangers.

He has had joint charge with Patrick of Rangers since their training camp opened here, October 12.

With appointment of an assistant coach and manager for his National League club, Patrick hopes to devote more attention to the executive duties of his extensive hockey organization.

Boucher's return to the club puts him with Patrick and Trainer Harry Westbury as the only survivors of the original New York Rangers, organized in 1926.

For ten years the Ranger star pivoted between Bun and Bill Cook on one of the greatest forward lines in major league history.

ALL-STAR TEAM NAMED BY ROSS

Boss of Bruins Selects Hockey Squad for St. Joseph's Game With Canadiens

HERSHEY, Pa., Oct. 20 (AP)—As the National Hockey League's All-Star manager, Art Ross, of Boston Bruins, tonight selected the All-Star team that will oppose the Canadiens in a memorial game for Babe Siebert in Montreal, October 29.

Siebert, who died of cancer, was a defenseman for the Bruins, and was killed in action during the war. Ross limited his selections to fourteen players.

His squad included Eddie Shore, Boston Bruins; Eddie Goodfellow, Detroit Red Wings; Art Coulter, New York Rangers; and Earl Selbert, Chicago Black Hawks, as defencemen. Gordon Drillon and Syl Apps, Toronto; Tommy Anderson, Toronto; and New York Americans; DH Clapper and Bobby Bauer, Bruins; Johnny Gottselig, Chicago; Naji Colville, Rangers; and Sid Howe, Detroit, are forwards. Frankie Brinck, of the Bruins, will be goalie.

Notre Dame Will Clash With Navy

NEW YORK, Oct. 20 (AP)—The United States college football card tomorrow is headed by four games with national significance.

The most important game, and one that has brought the Rose Bowl into disrepute for the first time this season, is the clash at Knoxville between Tennessee and Alabama, both unbeaten and untied. Enthusiastic Southerners see the winner as representative in the Rose Bowl.

Eighty thousand customers are due to see heavily-favored Notre Dame battle Navy in Cleveland's Municipal Stadium. Tradition is wrapped around the Harvard-Pennsylvania duel at Cambridge, Mass., first major game for the Canibus Texas Aggies, 1939's No. 1 South-west Conference team, are pronounced favorites over Texas Christian, No. 1 team in the nation a year ago.

WELTER CHAMPION FLATTENS MONTANA CHALLENGER EASILY

Hurricane Hank Smashes Opponent to the Canvas Five Times in Second Round and Ends It in The Next Canto With Flurry of Punches—Four Other Kayoes Take Place

SEATTLE, Oct. 20 (AP)—Hammerin' Henry Armstrong, the world's welterweight champion, scored a technical knockout over Richie Fontaine, of Missoula, Mont., tonight in the third round of their scheduled fifteen-round championship bout.

The Los Angeles negro hammered his challenger to the mat five times in the second and once in the third before delivering the blow that brought a towel from Fontaine's corner.

The sudden ending came after two minutes three seconds of the round with the dazed and helpless 141-pound Montanan flat on his face.

Armstrong, who weighed in at 139 3/4 pounds, started connecting with his gloved dynamite midway in the second round after a first round that was fast and fairly even, with Fontaine showing a willingness to mix it with the champ against whom he held one former ten-round decision and one ten-round setback.

Halfway through the second round Armstrong landed a left square on the rugged Montana's jaw and down he went. From there on it was pretty much of a bouncing act.

Armstrong would connect and Fontaine would go down in the time he was up without count, and none of the counts went above four. Fontaine appeared too dazed by the punishment to play the game of cooling off to a count.

Fontaine appeared to be a bit wobbly when he came out for the third round, weaving on a pair of rubber legs. Clutching a towel, he wandered in an opening flurry, when he went down for a six count. Again he went down from a blow to the jaw and his seconds threw in the towel before Referee Tommy Clark could start his count.

It was the third straight knockout victory for Armstrong over his current Western tour. He previously kayoed Howard Scott at Minneapolis and Al Manfredi at Des Moines.

The outcome was no surprise to the faithful who turned out for the fight. Armstrong had been such a heavy favorite that there was virtually no Fontaine money in evidence before the scrap.

Four knockouts, two of them the technical variety, marked the five bouts preceding the championship event.

The only preliminary which went the full route saw Tenny Talbot, 134, Seattle, win a six-round decision over Ray Price, 135, also Seattle.

In the semi-final event, Alex Watson, 163, Seattle, scored a second round knockout over Mario Duchini, Sacramento, 162-pounder, after Duchini had closed one of his eyes. Although Watson was on the receiving end of several barrages, he held an edge all the way, dropping Duchini once in the first round. The bout was scheduled for six rounds.

RELATES RELIEF WORK IN CHINA

United Church and Anglican Missionaries Combine in Aiding Refugees

MONTREAL, Oct. 20.—Rev. E. Bruce Copland, United Church missionary, home on furlough this summer from the war area of China, has been describing to Canadian audiences the missionary work among 20,000 Chinese soldiers in the province of Honan, China, where he served both the United Church and the Canadian Anglican mission.

Eighteen months ago he was invited by the Chinese Bishop of Honan to aid the work of the Anglican Mission there. Although he belongs to the United Church mission station at Hwaking, the missionary answered the bishop's call and became active in the work of ministering to 20,000 refugees who had come down from the North, fleeing before the wave of the Japanese invasion.

On completion of the work there, and in order to cross the Yellow River and get back to his own station, only 100 miles away, Mr. Copland was forced to make a detour of 2,000 miles, he said.

At his home station at Hwaking he found a difficult situation to be handled with more than 40,000 wounded Chinese soldiers in more than a dozen sub-hospitals set up in the vicinity of the mission station. For a year he undertook the administration work of these hospitals.

The following questions will be dealt with: "Did the prophets see down to our own day and have a picture of the millions marching under orders? Is there any evidence that they saw much beyond their own day? 'What other Gospel lessons are at stake in the present conflict? We know what we are fighting against, but do we know what we are fighting for? 'Is it now a question of who shall die—a million in Germany or millions in the democracies? 'Why is it an issue of death and not peace? 'The women of the congregation will again entertain the soldiers and sailors of H.M. Forces at a pleasant Sunday evening of supper and music. All on leave on Sunday evening are very cordially invited. Doors open at 6:30. Miss Ethel James will be at the piano and N. Y. Cross will lead the community singing.

CRIME TEARS ON CAROL WELLS

CHAPTER XXIV

Doctor Bascom came downstairs to find the living-room a scene of leave-takings.

Laura and George Lee were telling Cornelia they felt it was kinder to her for them to go home than to stay. Gifford Hale was saying pretty much the same thing, but he was thinking that if there was any possibility of this death being a matter of inquiry, he'd rather get out while the getting was good.

Cornelia was truly glad to have them go. She was harassed by vague fears as to the men in the village who had become unfriendly to Harley.

But as the guests drove away, Doctor Bascom demanded her attention. He was a doctor of the old school, which would have been nothing against him, if he had kept up with the discoveries and inventions of the new schools, too. Though less than average height, he believed he had an impressive presence.

"Miss Madison," he said, "I am now in a position to state my findings in the case of your brother's demise. As his attending physician, I can say positively that Harley Madison was a well man. He had no organic troubles, no infirmities of age were upon him, and there is no indication of any illness that could account for his sudden death. Yet there must have been a reason. It must have been a disease of the heart, of which I knew nothing. Such affections of the heart do sometimes develop suddenly, and bring about an unlooked for death. I do not declare positively that this is what happened in Mr. Madison's case, it will require an autopsy to prove it. I cannot grant a burial certificate, the way matters stand, and I desire to call a colleague in consultation."

"Very well, Doctor Bascom," Cornelia said. "I am perfectly willing you should have a consultation. Whom do you think of calling?"

"As the Assistant Medical Examiner is a friend of mine, I would like to ask him to come and give us his opinion."

"Why," Craig exclaimed, "I thought he was called only in case of somebody being killed."

"I don't diagnose it that way," Bascom said, "but I hold that it is a mysterious death, and I feel sure if I called in another physician, he would at once send for the Medical Examiner, so I may as well call him myself."

"Very well," Cornelia said, wearily. "It is in your hands, Doctor Bascom. I want you to do what is right."

"Then I shall call Dr. Penn," Bascom said, "but I am sure he is acting on impulse, but sure he was doing right, Craig called Fleming Stone on the telephone."

The two were good friends. Stone had taken a liking to the quick-witted and good-looking young man, and Craig looked upon the detective with hero-worship.

"Natural death, isn't it?" asked Stone. "Why call me?"

"The uncelebrated physician in charge of this hamlet says it is, but he also says it is mysterious."

"I'll run over at once, if you say so."

Fleming Stone reached the scene of Harley Madison's "mysterious death" before the arrival of the Assistant Medical Examiner.

Craig welcomed him and introduced him to Cornelia, who liked him at once. Everybody liked Stone. His intelligence and humor shone from his deep-set grey eyes, under their heavy brows. And he liked Cornelia. He recognized her fineness, her true aristocracy and her gentle dignity.

Anita planned to make a friend of him. Doctor Bascom was quite overcome with delight at the idea of working with the great man. For that was what it must come to. If Harley Madison did not die a natural death, from a stroke or a heart attack, and Bascom earnestly hoped he hadn't, then it was a case of homicide, and what marvelous good fortune to have Fleming Stone right at hand.

"I welcome you, sir," he said, grasping Stone's hand. "I expect Doctor Penn, our Assistant Medical Examiner, and with his skill and your own experience and my own humble assistance, what can we not achieve?"

"What is to be achieved, Doctor Bascom?" Stone asked. "Since you have sent for the Medical Examiner, and since you look forward to my possible help, you must have a suspicion of homicide. Have you?"

"I cannot say that I have, Mr. Stone. And yet, I cannot say that I haven't."

Stone wanted to say, "Then why talk at all?" but he restrained his desire and said, instead:

"You are quite right not to express an opinion, if you haven't one. Has Mr. Madison been ill?"

"No," Cornelia answered, "he has never been ill in his life as far as I know. He went to bed last night in all appearances in his usual perfect state of health; and this morning he is dead."

"Why do you call it a mysterious death, Doctor Bascom, when you mean only that you cannot discover the cause without an autopsy?"

Stone put no adverse criticism in his voice, but there was a hint of arranging the doctor, who resented it.

SILENCE CAUSE OF PERPLEXITY

Edinburgh Physician Comments on Air Raids—May Do War Work Here

Puzzlement at the failure of air raid precautions operations to go into action during the first German raid on the Edinburgh area of Scotland last Monday, was expressed yesterday by Dr. E. P. Northcroft, a physician of the Scottish capital, who is visiting Victoria, and is staying at the Empress Hotel.

"It is most extraordinary, for things are extremely well organized in Edinburgh, in similar fashion to the defences of London," he said. "However," he added, "the Edinburgh people, who have recollections of the last war, when Waverley Station and the Castle Rock were hit by bombs, are likely to take raids quite calmly."

Dr. and Mrs. Northcroft sailed for Canada the day before war was declared, the physician having disposed of his practice in London with the intention of going to Australia. He now is leaving England, but was convinced when he left that war would not take place.

"It's a funny thing," he remarked. "I don't think there was a single man I spoke to in London who disagreed with the view that there would be no war. We didn't think Hitler could be such a madman."

Dr. Northcroft, who spent the last eighteen months in London after practicing in Edinburgh, expressed admiration for the smooth evacuation of children from the British capital. "I never saw any organization to equal it," he stated. "There was no confusion, and it was just like thousands of children going off to a picnic in the country."

He commended London's civilian defence arrangements, comparing them with the state of affairs before the Munich crisis, which was deplorable, he said. "At that time we worked hard fitting people with gas masks in a hurry. This last time everything was ready months before," he told The Colonist.

The Edinburgh physician took issue with news reel pictures showing children struggling when being fitted with gas masks. "I never observed any struggling, and I've fitted hundreds of children of all kinds, with gas masks," he declared. "In fact, it was so easy, I would never have believed children would take it so matter-of-factly."

Dr. Northcroft mentioned that he was on the council of the Victoria League in Edinburgh, an organization formed to assist visitors from the Dominions when visiting Britain. During the last war the league ran a number of soldiers' huts and hostels, catering to troops from the overseas Dominions. "Many Canadian veterans will remember the Shakespeare hut in London," he said. "Similar plans are being carried out by the league for this war."

He is accompanied here by his wife, an author who has an epic story of New Zealand pioneer days to her credit, and who was decorated with the M.B.E. for her services among wounded soldiers in the Great War. Both Dr. Northcroft and his wife spent many years in New Zealand, he having served with the Anzac forces in 1914-15 and remained in Scotland afterwards to take up medicine.

Their plans for going to Australia are now "up in the air," Dr. Northcroft said, and they are staying here meantime. "If there is any war work to do here, we'll be glad to do it," he declared. "Both my wife and I are willing to put our shoulders to the wheel, if there is anything doing."

Silicosis and Other Questions Discussed With Provincial Government

The Provincial Government's stand in upholding the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act as a reasonable means of settling disputes was upheld by a delegation of the British Columbia Mining Association, calling yesterday on the Provincial Government. The delegation saw the Cabinet in the morning, and spoke to suggested changes in legislation dealing with mining.

Introduced by Rolf W. Bruhn, Conservative member for Salmon Arm, the delegation included A. E. Bull, M.C.; F. W. Guernsey, A. S. Baillie, Col. W. H. Law, D. S. Tait, and H. Mortimer Lamb, secretary of the association.

The question of silicosis was discussed last night, and the Government was asked to set out what was intended after recent provincial surveys in that connection.

What Today Means

"LIBRA"

If October 21 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m.; from 2:30 to 4:30 p.m., and from 8:30 to 10:30 p.m. The danger periods are from 7:30 a.m. to 9:30 a.m., from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., and from 10:30 p.m. until midnight.

Jumbled thoughts will make it difficult for the average person to think clearly this day. A lack of good breeding, or just ignorance of the ethics that govern polite society, will be responsible for most of the crude and rude remarks made, so if you are subjected to any you can well afford to ignore them. If you are a woman and October 21 is your birthday, you ought to have a great deal of individuality, plenty of foresight and a clear sense of justice. You do your best to be unselfish particularly in matters calling for a display of thoughtful consideration. You probably delight, whenever there is an occasion presented, to match your wits against someone else's, and the chances are you generally are successful. You are likely to have a gift for teaching, writing, acting, singing, painting, selling, designing, or for work of an executive type. You and the man you marry are apt to have similar tastes, and should have no trouble finding a high degree of happiness together. The child born on October 21 may develop a knack for being a veritable Jack-of-all-trades, and display cleverness in repairing things. Deleterious with their hands, such children seldom have to call on other people to help them. They, as a rule, develop into useful, prosperous and happy men and women. If you are a man and October 21 is your natal day, you should accomplish anything that you set your
